其基本的范围，就是提供各种弹簧支撑系统，
给您最好的睡眠体验

A woman with blonde hair tied back is running on a sandy beach. She is wearing a light pink tank top and dark grey leggings. Her right leg is forward in a running stride. The background shows the ocean waves and a clear blue sky. Overlaid on her back is a glowing, translucent orange and yellow illustration of a human spine, showing the vertebrae and intervertebral discs. The spine appears to have a spring-like structure, particularly in the lower back area, which is highlighted with a bright yellow glow.

The Essential Chiro Miracoil™

For a healthier back, and you.
给予健康的背与您

Dreamland's Chiro series are co-designed and endorsed by qualified practicing chiropractors featuring a patented spring system that ultimately results in excellent comfort and superior spinal support. The Miracoil™ Spring System provides excellent support for the body structure and supports individual movements thus minimizing partner disturbances for optimal sleeping comfort.

DENIM LIFESTYLE

Did You Know?

Jeans fabric was apparently created in the cities of Genoa, Italy, and Nîmes, France. The origin for the word "jeans" may have come from Genès – French for Genoa. The people of Nîmes tried to reproduce the fabric, but they created denim instead.

The difference of the two fabrics are that Genoa's jeans fabric is similar to cotton corduroy (the place was famous for it) and is a textile of "medium-quality and of reasonable costs". Nîmes's denims are coarser and considered much higher in quality – which is why they used denim to make smocks or overalls back then.

Want to know what sailors from Genoa used to protect their goods from the weather before sailing?

Jeans! (Yes, seriously)

Blue dyes were really rare, so indigo dyes (to dye fabric blue) were extracted from indigo plantations in India until late 19th century. And then Germany started to develop indigo synthesis methods, and BASF got a process to mass-produce synthetic indigo by 1897.

Now, it became a very popular casual wear around the world with all sorts of colours and styles.

The popular colours used:

Blue

Indigo

Black

BLUES

Identified with American culture, blue denim is the most popular fashion colour for several decades. With its high durability compared to other common fabrics, you can sleep with lasting comfort and style.
